EXT. MEGA-YACHT – MAIN DECK - NIGHT

<THUNDER RUMBLES> as the storm gets closer. Picking up where we left off, the power has gone OUT on Diamond Tiara’s Daddy’s Mega-Yacht and she’s fuh-reaking OUT! He loves this mega-yacht more than mega-life itself! Everyone else is worried too: Bulk Biceps admits that even though his muscles are huge, the strongest muscle of all... is IMAGINATION: and he can’t stop thinking that they’re never gonna get home alive! Panic starts to ensue, but the brave captain takes charge and announces his plan: “Game over, man! ABANDON SHIP!”

Luckily, The Mane 7 are there to stay calm and regroup... mostly thanks to some of the emergency-preparedness tips Sci Twi picked up from her triple-certified amateur safety inspection that afternoon. She comes up with a plan, step one of which is get their geode necklaces back from Sunset, who uh, yeah... “Is this a bad time to tell you I kinda, sorta... left them behind so we could enjoy our trip without fighting any bad guys...?” Backup plan! They all turn to Applejack, expecting her to have brought her tools somewhere, right? She’s like, nope, seriously... “I said work hard, PLAY hard and I meant it!”

INT. ENGINE ROOM - LATER

While Pinkie Pie and the chef serve ice cream as it melts from the nonworking freezer, the girls make some remedial repairs in the engine room the old-fashioned way: with a little vacation-strength elbow grease. (Rarity: “my elbows are anything but greasy, and if they were, I’d apply powder post-haste.”) Sci-Twi’s electrical engineering book comes in handy, but even with the backup generators finally working the engines won’t start. Captain Sandy Scupper shouts down for help: the ship is drifting towards... something unusual...!

EXT. MEGA-YACHT - NIGHT

The ocean glows all around them. Fluttershy realizes it’s not magic: it’s nature! Phosphorescent algae! Everyone takes in the magical sight, except Sci Twi, who flips through one of her books with worried urgency. Just as she thought... she settles everyone in for a spooky tale (which we see in stylized still images, ship engravings?) ... for this is one of the indicators that they’re drifting into Leviathan’s Eye: a circular spot in the ocean where ships disappear (SciTwi doubts there are supernatural forces at work, but the statistical deviation of missing ships cannot be dismissed!)

Everyone is kinda spooked, so Sci Twi promises to find a way to divert power from the generator to the engines... it won't be strong, but it should be just strong enough to keep them from drifting toward certain trouble. Rainbow Dash is beside herself. Just when things are starting to get interesting, they want to PUT A STOP TO IT!? This is their chance to solve the greatest ocean-going mystery of all time! The Mane 7 take a vote: it's six to one in favor of "not letting themselves get lost at sea."

INT. ENGINE ROOM – LATER

Sunset offers to help Sci Twi. She feels bad, this is her fault for leaving their geode amulets at home. But Sci Twi cheers her up: it's Rainbow Dash's fault for ignoring her warnings about overloading the electrical system. They agree: she's just being herself but sometimes it would be nice if she were a little less... extreme. Sci Twi gets the engines hooked up to the backup generator and BRRRRVROOM! The ship begins to move!

EXT. MAIN DECK – MOMENTS LATER

They're saved! The engine rumbles along, pushing the Mega-Yacht out of the glowing algae and away from Leviathan's Eye. Everything's going to be fine now... except... where's Rainbow Dash? Sci Twi notices one of the Life Boats is missing...

...because RD has gone off on her own! Off their worried looks... END OF PART THREE!
