EXT. MEGA-YACHT – DAY

(quick note for reading this: the submitted outline for part 3 said that they get the yacht engine repaired. After more thought, I think we should lose that and keep them stranded! DUH!)

We find the Mane 7 (minus Rainbow Dash) on the deck of the ship as the sun comes up, where they discuss the situation: RD has taken off on her own, “borrowing” a lifeboat and venturing onto the open sea. They talk through possible scenarios, trying to decide if this is a bona-fide emergency or not. AJ’s not one to cluck around like a chicken with her head cut off. Rainbow Dash is probably just out there to blow off some steam: She’ll be back. On the other hand, Sci Twi worries that something bad might have happened, “Like Leviathan’s Eye!” Sunset votes to go look for her... as she feels partially responsible because they wouldn’t be stranded out here in the first place if she hadn’t ditched their geode necklaces. Since Sci Twi is the only one who knows the ins and outs of the legends surrounding Leviathan’s Eye, she reluctantly agrees to come along, as the two of them decide to take a second lifeboat and go search for Rainbow Dash. They promise to keep sight of the ship at all times. (Sunset doesn’t have to tell Sci Twi that twice! SHE’LL MAKE SURE OF IT!). The others agree that since it’s probably not an emergency, they’re better off helping on the Yacht. Whether it’s trying to ask local marine life for directions (Fluttershy, with difficulty), trying to repair the engine (Applejack, reluctantly) or serving fresh-baked electrolyte-infused-survivalist-chocoholic-sprinkle-yum-yum-cupcakes. (Pinkie Pie, OBVIOUSLY).

EXT. THE OPEN SEA – LATER

Sunset and Sci Twi row away from the dimly lit ship, following the undersea light of the glowing algae “river” in the ocean below them. A thick fog rolls in and before long, they’re lost. Sunset tells Sci Twi not to say anything spooky to jinx them. Sci Twi explains she’ll try navigating using an old technique called ‘dead reckoning.’ Sunset: “Yeah, you just jinxed us.”

Then through the fog they see the Mega-Yacht— a sigh of relief. “Thank goodness” ... but it turns out to be a spooky old wrecked ship. In fact, when the fog clears, Sunset and Sci Twi find themselves drifting among wrecked ships everywhere. They are definitely in Leviathan’s Eye, no doubt about that. If they were carried here, it stands to reason that... OH NO! They spot, up ahead, RAINBOW DASH’S LIFEBOAT... wrecked and split in two! They investigate, relieved to find wet footprints leading onto the deck of an adjacent wrecked ship. The trail looks like it leads... that way... and, thinking they see the shadow of an island up ahead, reluctantly make their way by climbing across the decks of some other wrecked ships, following the trail. Indiana-Jones-Esque scares ensue, like when they run into CREEPY PIRATE SKELETONS! (but it turns out they're aboard a wrecked "Halloween Party Supply ship," so like, duh, they're fake, which Sunset TOTALLY knew the whole time and wasn't scared at all. Sci Twi: "me either!")

EXT. TROPICAL ISLAND – DAY

Sunset and Sci Twi finally make it to the island, but there's no sign of Rainbow Dash. As they head into the underbrush to look for her (following footprints in the sand), we see the flash of SCARY EYES watching them from the bushes...

Finally, they come to the top of a hill where they can see the whole island. No sign of Rainbow Dash. But look—WAYyyyyyy off in the distance, is that their ship, the Mega-Yacht? Sunset and Sci Twi share a moment, lamenting what their Spring Break has become, but it's cut short by the GROWLING of whatever's been following them this whole time! Those eyes flash bright, and the girls cower toward the edge of a cliff on the mountaintop... as the creature steps into the light...

...and they they're cornered by... A HUNGRY MANTICORE.
