Facing certain doom at the hands of adorable yet carnivorous island-bunnies, Rainbow Dash breaks down – not unlike she did on the scary roller coaster in Me, My Selfie, and I —except she blames SciTwi for getting them in this situation in the first place! This is all her fault, and she’s not even here to get eaten with them!!! As if on cue—SCI TWI SWINGS IN ON A VINE and rescues them. Her friends are stunned to see she’s gone full-native: war paint, stick/leaf body armor, bone nun-chucks, and a hollowed-out-gourd canteen filled with delicious island fruit punch (much to everyone’s delight). She leads them somewhere safe ... a teen-bedroom-decorated cave deep in the jungle (her new home). Pinkie Pie comments on the ridiculousness/4th-wall-breakingly: “Wow, you really changed in the last few hours.”

Thankful for the rescue. Rainbow Dash apologizes for treating Sci Twi so badly, making fun of her safety prep and not taking her fears seriously. She admits that she’s the same way—why else does she prepare for soccer games by practicing so hard? She’s afraid she’ll lose! Apology accepted, they get to work planning how to get back to the Mega-Yacht. (Fluttershy has been pondering the mysterious animals while Pinkie Pie bakes a chef-inspired soufflé on the campfire. This all seems familiar to Sunset, but she can’t put her finger on it!) Suddenly, cutting off their planning-- The volcano’s blowing its top! (I’m aware this is a lot, DHX—happy to brainstorm simpler ways to drive their escape!). Lava pours down, forcing them to run for it. Fluttershy urges them to follow the animals! (Rainbow Dash: “that’s your answer to everything!”) They realize the animals are all jumping into that shimmering pool. Suddenly Sunset figures it out... “that’s no pool.” Without explaining herself, she tells everyone to jump in! With flames surrounding them and only seconds to spare, they jump in the shimmering pool. A MAGICAL TRANSITION takes us to a forest, where we hear Sunset’s voice: “We’re safe for now, but um... promise you won’t freak out?” Reveal: the girls ARE PONIES!
