A CANTERLOT WEDDING (REVISED-TWO PART SPECIAL)

Twilight's older brother, Shining Armor, is getting married in Canterlot and all of her friends are involved. Rarity is making the dresses. Fluttershy is providing the music with the help of her bird choir. Pinkie Pie is in charge of planning the reception that Apple Jack will be catering. And Rainbow Dash is going to try to create a sonic rainboom for the 'I do's'. Spike has put himself in charge of the Bachelor Party. (He has no idea what a Bachelor Party is.) Twilight is actually a part of the wedding party. Her brother has asked her to be his 'best mare' in lieu of the more traditional 'best stallion'. Twilight couldn't be more thrilled.

The moment she arrives in Canterlot, Twilight gallops off to find her brother. She catches up with him while Shining Armor is 'at work'. He is Captain of the Canterlot Royal Guard, responsible for the safety of the royal city. His main duty as Captain is the creation of a magical protective force field that surrounds and protects Canterlot and is only visible when he first casts the spell. It's a big job and a big spell and one that Shining Armor needs to cast once a week to keep Canterlot's defenses up. Twilight waits not-so-patiently for her brother to be done. She's anxious to have some 'alone time' with her brother. She jokes about only having a short time before she 'loses him forever' to his bride. But Twilight is actually super psyched about Shining Armor's fiancée, Mi Amore, the beloved niece of Princess Celestia herself! Mi Amore use to babysit Twilight many years before and like many young fillies in the presence of a lovely teenager, Twilight was in awe of her! Her grace, her beauty and her special Unicorn power to spread love wherever she goes. She can't wait to meet her again after all these years.

But when they finally do meet, Mi Amore acts as if she's never met Twilight before being reminded that she use to babysit her. Twilight feels a little insulted but tries to brush it off. As the days go by and the wedding approaches, Twilight's misgivings increase. Mi Amore says all the right things and her family and friends are enchanted by her. But it somehow feels fake to Twilight. She feels bad about feeling bad about Mi Amore and tries to broach the subject with her brother but Shining Armor is walking around in a dreamy haze, doing whatever Mi Amore commands him to do. She really does not like the way Mi Amore is bossing her brother around and turns to her friends for support. But they think she is just being over protective.

At a Pre-Wedding party thrown by Pinkie, Twilight redoubles her efforts to get some alone time with Mi Amore in the hopes of dispelling her doubts. But as she shadows the bride Twilight gets a chance to secretly see some really unsavory behavior. Mi Amore gets into a nasty, behind-the-scenes fight with her bridesmaids who accuse her of 'acting strange' and 'not being like herself'. She even spies what looks like Mi Amore putting some sort of spell on Shining Armor. Twilight goes from slight unease to a firm conclusion that Mi Amore is pure evil. Her course is clear: she must stop the wedding.

The day of the rehearsal, Twilight looks for the bridesmaids, hoping to team up with them against Mi Amore. But every single one of them has mysteriously disappeared.

When she goes to recruit her friends, she finds that they are Mi Amore's new bridesmaids! Having just been invited to join the ceremony, none of her friends have any interest in stopping it. And Twilight's mad ranting does nothing to convince them that there is any problem beyond Twilight's out-of-control jealousy.

But stubborn Twilight is determined to save her brother no matter what. She's so anxious that instead of waiting to disrupt the actual ceremony, she ruins the rehearsal instead. In front of everypony, she accuses the bride of all sorts of evil actions and nefarious plans. Mi Amore runs away crying. Before galloping after her, Shining Armor makes it clear that he does not want Twilight to be his best filly anymore. Her friends and family cannot believe what Twilight has done. With everypony scolding her, Twilight begins to doubt her instincts.

But that night her worst fears are confirmed when Mi Amore takes her captive. The bride is not going to let Twilight ruin her 'special day' – the day when she will gain final control over Shining Armor and through him control of Canterlot's defenses!

The next day, as the guests gather, Twilight's friends are disappointed but not surprised that she is absent. The ceremony commences and it looks like Shining Armor and Mi Amore will be married. But at the last possible moment Twilight shows up. She has a special present for her brother-the REAL Mi Amore. Seems that she was being held captive in the same location that the fake bride took Twilight.

The fake Mi Amore reveals herself as a powerful Changeling, a magical shape-shifting creature known for taking the place of loved ones. Her disguise has outlived its usefulness anyways. The truth will do nothing to save Canterlot. Shining Armor is still under her spell and the protective shield around the city is weak enough for her army of minions to break through. The guests can see the truth of what she is saying through the castle windows. Thousands of winged creatures dive at the shield, 'eating away' at it. They will be through it in a matter of minutes.

Twilight and her friends spring into action, trying to defeat the Changeling. But even with all six of them battling her, the Changeling is slowly getting the better of them. And her army has broken through the force field and is quickly closing in on the castle! But while Pseudo Mi Amore is preoccupied, the real Mi Amore has a moment alone with Shining Armor. Her love for Shining Armor breaks the Changeling's spell over him. But the Changeling only laughs. Should Shining Armor recast his spell now, it will only lock her army inside it's barriers. They're too late! But upon embracing, Mi Amore and Shining Armor create a super spell that surges forth, expanding ever outward from their hearts. The combination of their talents pushes out anyone who's heart does not hold love, driving the Changeling and her army out of Canterlot and then all of Equestria as it settles over the whole kingdom.

The wedding ceremony resumes with the rightful bride. Everypony now looks at Twilight as a hero and she learns to trust your instincts and be persistent when you KNOW something is wrong. And all who witnessed the events learn an even more powerful lesson: that true love conquers all!

Later, as everyone waves goodbye to the newly married couple, Spike rubs his hands together and asks Pinkie and Twilight to help him plan the Bachelor Party.
