

Distribution:

Production:

Sarah Wall
Meghan McCarthy
Jayson Thiessen
James Wooton
Angela Belyea

Discovery/Hasbro:

Donna Ebbs
Carin Davis
Tegan Molloy
Laurence Braun
Stephen Cramer

Hasbro Studios:

Stephen Davis
Linda Steiner
Kathy Page
Robert Fewkes
Sophia Hussain

Hasbro IP & Brand:

Mark Wiesenbahn
Matt Mattus
Valerie Jurries
Donna Tobin

Hasbro Design:

Liz Knight
Dean Carley

MY LITTLE PONY III

Episode 301 & 302

"The Crystal Kingdom"

(Parts 1 & 2)

Outline by

Meghan McCarthy

Extended Premise/Outline: August 15, 2011

Notes Due: August 16, 2011

“The Crystal Kingdom – Part I”

TEASER

TWILIGHT SPARKLE is talking to herself as she frantically darts about the library gathering books, quills, paper and other items. As she darts back and forth in front of him, a calm SPIKE is telling her that she has nothing to worry about, “It’s just a test.” Twilight SCREECHES to a halt, dropping a stack of books. “Just a test? Just a test?!” Spike shrinks as Twilight leans in close. “Princess Celestia wants to give me some kind of exam to find out how my studies are progressing and you’re trying to tell me not to worry because – ‘it’s just a test?!’ Spike offers up a nervous, “Yes?” Twilight lets out an exasperated groan then resumes darting about. We WIDEN TO REVEAL: RARITY, APPLEJACK, FLUTTERSHY, and RAINBOW DASH are also in the room observing Twilight’s manic behavior. Applejack: “I’d say she’s handling things pretty well, considerin’.” Twilight trips over a stack of books and lands with a thud. She lets out another exasperated groan as we... END TEASER

ACT I

PRINCESS CELESTIA meets with PRINCESS LUNA in the throne room. They speak in hushed tones. Princess Luna tells her sister that perhaps it would be better if she were to take on such an important task. “The kingdom is too important to the future of Equestria,” she adds. Princess Celestia informs Luna that “she” is also important to the future of Equestria. “If she succeeds, we’ll know that she is that much closer to being ready,” she adds cryptically. Their conversation is interrupted by a quiet “ahem”. They turn to see Twilight standing in the doorway.

Princess Celestia dismisses her sister and invites Twilight to enter. “You wanted to see me?” Twilight says, “To give me a test?” Twilight uses her magic to open a bag beside her. She shows the Princess that she’s brought her own ink and quill and plenty of paper to show her answers.

Princess Celestia smiles and uses her magic to place the items back into Twilight’s bag. She informs Twilight that it is a different kind of test – one that requires a history lesson first. Twilight listens intently as Princess Celestia begins to tell her about the CRYSTAL KINGDOM. Once a beautiful place filled with magic and light, it served as a beacon of hope for all of Equestria.

As Princess Cadence speaks, she uses her magic to project images of the Crystal Kingdom and the sparkling CRYSTAL PONIES that resided there. The sky above the kingdom shimmers and shines - Equestria’s version of the Aurora Borealis.

Princess Celestia explains that the Crystal Kingdom fell to an evil queen – the CHANGELING QUEEN and her MINIONS descend upon the Crystal Kingdom and it is TRANSFORMED into a dark and terrifying place; its citizens turn into dull, gray shells of their former glittering selves.

Twilight asks Princess Celestia about the Changeling Queen. Is this the same queen who tried to control her brother Shining Armor? Twilight uses her magic to project an image of Shining Armor in a daze. The same queen that tried to take her sister-in-law's place at her wedding? A swish of her horn erases the image of Shining Armor and replaces it with an image of the Changeling Queen as Princess Cadence. "The same Queen whose plot to take over Equestria only you were wise enough to figure out in time," Princess Celestia adds proudly, using her own magic to show Twilight angrily staring down the Changeling Queen as she turns from Princess Cadence back into her true form.

Princess Celestia explains that because Princess Cadence was able to eject the Changeling Queen from Equestria, she has been selected to take the Changeling Queen's place as ruler of the Crystal Kingdom. But she needs help restoring it to its former glory. Should the Crystal Kingdom and its citizens not be returned to their original form, the Kingdom will be susceptible to not just another attack by the Changeling Queen, but by any evil being who wishes to bring harm to Equestria. Restoring the Crystal Kingdom with Princess Cadence -- that will be Twilight's test.

Twilight vows to help her former filly-sitter to the best of her abilities. Princess Celestia tells her that she does not need to go alone to the Crystal Kingdom. Applejack, Rarity, Rainbow Dash, Fluttershy and Spike can go with her and give her assistance along the way. But in the end, it must be Twilight who ultimately helps Princess Celestia return the light of the Crystal Kingdom to the night sky. Princess Celestia tells Twilight that she should leave as soon as possible. Her friends are already waiting for her at the train station. As Twilight turns to go, Princess Celestia tells her that there is one more thing Twilight needs to know. Should Twilight fail this test, she can no longer continue being Princess Celestia's student. This information hits Twilight like a ton of bricks. Princess Celestia assures her that she has every confidence that Twilight will pass.

MUSIC UP as Twilight exits the castle. As she makes her way to the train station, she begins to SING a SONG reflecting her POV about the "test" Princess Celestia is giving her. She wasn't prepared for something like this. She was expecting something different. A display of all the spells she's learned-- she shows off a few. A pop quiz on the accomplishments of Starswirl the Bearded-- she rattles them off at lightening speed. An oral exam on all the lessons she's learned about friendship -- she recaps some of the lessons from our previous seasons. But helping transform an entire Kingdom? That was a surprise. "But if this is how I'm to be tested -- to this challenge I will rise."

The MUSIC FADES as Twilight arrives at the TRAIN STATION to find Spike and her friends eagerly awaiting her arrival. They are clearly oblivious as to why they are there. "Didja pass?" Applejack asks. "Are we going to celebrate your awesomeness with Princess Celestia?" Pinkie Pie inquires. "Not quite," replies Twilight. "We're going to the Crystal Kingdom," she adds. Off her friends confused looks we END ACT I.

ACT II

Twilight, Spike, and the Ponyville Ponies reach the end of the line on the train. They disembark to find themselves in a desolate, icy wasteland. Twilight clearly has her work cut out for her. The friends begin the difficult trek across the unforgiving terrain. But as they come around an icy mountain they are shocked and amazed to find the most beautiful place they have ever seen – the Crystal Kingdom -- a veritable Shangri-La in the midst of the frozen tundra. A shining CRYSTAL CASTLE serves as its centerpiece. Twilight is confused. Sure looks like Princess Cadence has everything under control.

But when the Ponyville Ponies enter the Crystal Kingdom, they notice that the ponies that reside there do not shine as bright as the kingdom itself. They are a dull gray and hold their heads low. Twilight and her friends meet up with Princess Cadence and find out that despite her best efforts, Princess Cadence has not been able to return her subjects to their true Crystal Pony form. Princess Cadence attributes this to the fact that the ponies of her new kingdom have been oppressed for so long that even her magic isn't enough to fully open their hearts.

But there is hope. Cadence has learned that prior to the Changeling Queen's arrival, there was an annual Crystal Faire. It was one of the most important traditions of the Crystal Ponies and its dissolution by the Queen was her first act of cruelty. Princess Cadence hopes that if she can recreate this event for her subjects, joy will return to their hearts and they will become Crystal Ponies again. Alas, she knows very little about the Crystal Faire and what it entails. "A research paper!" Twilight says, excitedly. Collecting information about the Crystal Faire and delivering it to Princess Cadence is clearly the first part of her test. "I love research papers!" she exclaims with a little too much excitement. "Yeah. Who doesn't?" Rainbow Dash replies sarcastically.

Twilight, Applejack, Rarity, Fluttershy, Rainbow Dash and Spike venture out into the kingdom in search of information about the Crystal Faire. Twilight reminds them that Princess Celestia told her that her friends may offer assistance, but it is Twilight who must ultimately be the one to help Princess Cadence transform the kingdom. They'll split up and see what they can learn from the citizens of the kingdom, then regroup and Twilight will put together all that they've learned to present it to the Princess. Once they have all the information, it will probably become clearer what exactly Twilight must do on her own.

But extracting information from the locals proves to be more than a little difficult. Rainbow Dash's in-your-face approach to questioning sends them running. Rarity keeps getting distracted by daydreams of her own transformation into a gorgeous Crystal Pony. Fluttershy is too shy to even approach anyone. The locals seem to believe Pinkie Pie is some sort of spy sent by the Changeling Queen herself. "Don't you see we're trying to help you?!" an exasperated Rainbow Dash asks a cowering pony. Only Applejack's gentle, down-home approach seems to elicit the tiniest of clues.

Applejack, Rarity, Fluttershy, Rainbow Dash, and Pinkie Pie meet up with Twilight later with not much to show for their efforts. They apologize to Twilight for letting her down.

Pinkie Pie doesn't understand why the locals seem so reluctant to talk about the Crystal Faire. "The Changeling Queen may be gone, but her former subjects remain suspicious and afraid," Twilight tells her friends. "Yeah. All I could get out of one of 'em was something about a library," Applejack adds. Twilight lights up. "They have a library?! Well, why didn't you say so?!" SMASH CUT TO:

The CRYSTAL KINGDOM LIBRARY -- or what is left of it. Though its walls have been returned to crystal as a result of Princess Cadence's magic, its interior still reflects the havoc that the Changeling Queen wreaked upon it. But Twilight is certain that something must remain that can help them find the answers they seek about the Crystal Faire. The Ponyville Ponies begin searching through the rubble. "That Changeling Queen sure didn't like books," Applejack comments. "She didn't like things that might remind her subjects of who they were before she took over," Twilight responds.

Suddenly Twilight lets out a cry. Spike and the other ponies rush to her side and discover that she wasn't crying out in fear, but in excitement. She's found a book buried in the rubble. It is tattered and torn. But flipping through it, Twilight has found that it contains details about the Crystal Faire. "Bingo!" Twilight says. "Bingo? All this time I've been looking for books and you've been playing Bingo?" Pinkie Pie pouts.

ACT III

Spike accompanies Twilight to meet with Princess Cadence to present her findings. According to the book, the Crystal Faire was truly a celebration of the Crystal Kingdom and its citizens. Twilight is certain that bringing it back will indeed bring joy to Princess Cadence's new subjects. Princess Cadence agrees, but adds that they must move quickly. She's noticed that the magic she has been using to transform the kingdom's landscape seems to be fading. It is as if her subjects' sadness is slowly sapping her of her strength. She gestures out into the kingdom. Sure enough, the borders of the Crystal Kingdom are starting to flicker and lose their luster.

Twilight tells Princess Cadence not to worry. Armed with the knowledge she has gained from the book, she is certain she can put together the Crystal Faire. And do so quickly. As Twilight and Spike depart, Spike reminds Twilight that she, and she alone, is supposed to ultimately help Princess Cadence restore the kingdom. What does that mean she is meant to do? She obviously can't put on the Crystal Faire all by herself.

Twilight tells Spike she isn't sure. The answer will surely present itself at some point. At least she hopes it will. But right now, she's got to get everypony moving on getting the Faire together. With Princess Cadence's magic slowly fading, they have no time to lose.

MUSIC UP as Twilight, Rarity, Rainbow Dash, Pinkie Pie, Applejack, and Spike make preparations for the Crystal Faire. They SING about their various roles as Twilight references the damaged book and advises them on what needs to be done so that the Crystal Faire will be 100% authentic. Rainbow Dash gets to work on a jousting arena. Rarity sews fabulous tents with the colors of the Crystal Kingdom flag. Fluttershy coaxes a strange bird-like creature out of its cave. Pinkie Pie struggles to learn how to play a traditional Crystal Kingdom musical instrument. Applejack forages for indigenous fruits and berries to serve. The Crystal Faire comes together and we see that it looks like a ponified version of a Renaissance Faire as we END SONG.

As the ponies congratulate one another on a job well done, Rarity notices that there is a pedestal in the center of the Faire and asks Twilight what it is for. Twilight doesn't know. The book only said that there should be a pedestal so she's put one there. There isn't time for further discussion as Twilight notes that parts of the Crystal Kingdom are starting to flicker even more than before. They need to start the Crystal Faire right away.

Pinkie Pie plays the traditional Crystal Kingdom instrument and Twilight announces that the citizens of the kingdom are hereby invited to attend the Crystal Faire. Curious ponies gradually exit their homes and make their way to the fairgrounds. They still seem nervous, but as they approach, they begin commenting on the fact that the Faire appears to be the real thing. Their coats seem to brighten a little bit as they see the traditional elements of the Faire represented.

As the Crystal Kingdom ponies approach, Twilight offers to help Princess Cadence open the gates to the Faire. Perhaps carrying out this simple act with the Princess is all she needs to do. Twilight and Princess Cadence welcome the Crystal Kingdom citizens and use their magic to open the gates. Twilight notes the slightly shimmering coats of the Crystal Kingdom citizens. "I think it's working," she tells Spike excitedly.

But as the Crystal Ponies file into the fair, Twilight overhears them talking about something -- a Crystal Heart. They can't believe it's been recovered. "How were they able to retrieve it?" one asks. "Do you think it is still as powerful?" asks another. "Do you think it will glow as brightly as it once did?" asks her companion. "Guess we're going to find out when the Princess uses her magic on it," adds another. "I want to see it right away," adds still another. "Me too. Where's the pedestal?" asks her companion.

Twilight goes ashen. A powerful Crystal Heart? When the Princess performs her magic on it? Twilight rushes up to Princess Cadence. "I've made a mistake," she tells the Princess. She informs Cadence that she has left out an important element of the Crystal Faire, perhaps the most important part of all. If Princess Cadence is unable to produce the Crystal Heart for her subjects after she has seemingly promised it to them, they will think that she has raised their hopes only to crush them. They will think she is as duplicitous as the Changeling Queen. The mere thought of this pains Princess Cadence, causing her magic to fade even more. Twilight looks around to see the landscape at the edge of the kingdom flickering, and then turning black. The darkness begins to spread as we...

END PART I

"The Crystal Kingdom - Part II"

ACT IV

A panicked Twilight rushes into the center of the fair, using her magic to snatch up a rock and a piece of fabric as she darts past some locals. She places the rock upon the pedestal and the fabric over it to hide it from view just as a pair of Crystal Kingdom citizens approach. She tells them that the Crystal Heart will be revealed later, trying to hide the nervousness in her voice. They seem to accept this-- for the moment.

Twilight gathers her friends and informs them that she has finally figured out what she and she alone must do to help Cadence restore the kingdom and pass Princess Celestia's test. She must retrieve the Crystal Heart so that Princess Cadence can use it to transform her subjects. Unfortunately, she has no idea where the Crystal Heart is. The book she's been referencing for information on the Faire didn't mention anything about a Crystal Heart, let alone where it might be located.

Twilight uses her magic to flip through the book to see if there was something she missed. And, indeed there was. As she turns the pages, a piece of paper that has been folded and stuck inside falls to the ground. Upon it is a picture of the Crystal Heart, though it is hard to see what it really looks like because of the message in black ink that has been scrawled across it. Twilight reads the words aloud. They inform the reader that the Crystal Heart is in the castle, and that no Crystal Pony shall ever see it again.

Twilight tells her friends that she is going to go to the castle and find the Crystal Heart. They must keep the Crystal Kingdom citizens from figuring out that there is only a rock under the cloth on that pedestal until she returns. The Ponyville Ponies vow to do their part. One of them will always stand guard at the pedestal while the others keep the Faire-goers focused on the events of the Crystal Faire.

As Twilight departs for the castle, she looks back to see Spike chasing after her. She reminds him that she is meant to retrieve the Crystal Heart alone. Spike promises he will only be there for moral support. "I won't lift a claw to help you," he adds. Twilight agrees she could probably use a little moral support. It is after all her entire future that hangs in the balance.

With Spike now riding on her back, Twilight makes a mad dash into the Crystal Castle. The Crystal Heart is hidden somewhere within its walls - but where? Where would the Changeling Queen have put it? Twilight searches frantically. It has to be here somewhere. Then it hits her. When the Changeling Queen took power she turned the Crystal Castle into her own dark and evil home. Princess Cadence used her magic to transform it back. Twilight will never find the Crystal Heart within the walls of the castle as it appears now; she needs it to look the way it did when the Changeling Queen resided here.

Spike looks on in amazement as Twilight lowers her horn and uses her magic to return the interior of the castle to the state it was in prior to Princess Cadence's arrival. It's beautiful, colorful interior transforms into menacing shards of black crystal. "Whoa, when did you learn to do that?" Spike asks. As they resume their search, Twilight explains that she thought she was going to need to know some pretty advanced spells for the test she assumed she was taking in Canterlot. This was one of the ones she learned.

With Spike right behind her, Twilight enters the Changeling Queen's throne room. There amid the black crystals on the throne is a bright pink Crystal Heart! Twilight rushes over to it, elated. The Changeling Queen clearly thought she would always be the one to reside in the castle and that no Crystal Pony would ever have access to the throne room, hence her hiding it in plain sight.

But as Twilight uses her magic to remove the Crystal Heart from the throne, the floor beneath her begins to shift. The pink Crystal Heart turns black and Twilight and Spike are just barely able to dive out of the way as the ground beneath them splits to reveal a dark staircase.

"Stay here," Twilight commands Spike. "If you insist," Spike answers as Twilight descends the steps and arrives in... Canterlot.

ACT V

Twilight looks around, confused. How is this possible? How can she be in Canterlot? She hears a voice and turns around to see Princess Celestia. "What are you doing here?" Princess Celestia asks, an angry tone to her voice. "I told you that you were no longer my student. So why are you still here?" Celestia asks. Now Twilight is really confused. "But the test isn't over. The Crystal Heart--" she insists. "The test is over," Celestia tells Twilight, "You failed." Twilight is stunned.

"But what do I do now?" Twilight asks. "I don't know," Princess Celestia answers. "What do ponies do when the thing that is most important to them is taken away?" she asks. "Perhaps you should ask the Crystal Ponies," she adds. Princess Celestia departs, leaving Twilight all alone. The sky around her goes dark. MUSIC UP as Twilight, surrounded by dark, swirling skies begins to sing a SONG. In it she expresses her devastation at no longer being Princess Celestia's student. Where will she go? What will she do? This is all she's ever wanted and now it is gone. Just as she launches into the final verse---

BAM! Twilight is struck by something. She hits the ground with a THUD. She shakes herself off to find Spike sprawled out on top of her. "Spike?" Spike dusts himself off as Twilight slowly gets back on her feet. "I know you told me to stay up there, but you were standing in front of that mirror for a really long time," Spike tells her. "What mirror?" Twilight asks. Spike gestures to a mirror at the bottom of the stairwell. Twilight turns to look at it but Spike jumps in front of her to block her view. "You probably shouldn't look at it again," Spike suggests.

Twilight explains that she saw her future in the mirror. The one in which she fails Princess Celestia's test. She isn't going to let that future come to pass. She's going to get the Crystal Heart and remain Princess Celestia's pupil. Spike tells her she'd better hurry. She lost precious time staring into that mirror.

Meanwhile, back at the Crystal Faire, the Ponyville Ponies are doing their best to keep the Crystal Kingdom ponies focused on the events of the Crystal Faire and away from the pedestal and the non-existent Crystal Heart. But it is getting increasingly difficult.

Applejack is starting to feel a little sick from challenging so many ponies to pie eating contests. Fluttershy doesn't think she can handle another jousting session with Rainbow Dash. And no one seems to want to take Rarity up on a make-over. "Even I'm having a hard time keeping this party going," a jester-costume wearing Pinkie Pie laments as she juggles. The Ponyville Ponies are planning their next move when they suddenly realize that no one is standing guard by the pedestal. They are about to rush over to it when they hear a voice proclaiming, "It's nothing but a rock!" The Ponyville Ponies react with alarm as we CUT TO:

The castle -- where Twilight and Spike have reached another stairwell. This one goes up. "I'm going with you this time," Spike tells Twilight as he follows her up the stairs. As they climb, they start to see something glowing in the distance. Twilight quickens her pace. She reaches the top of the stairs and finds that she is in a room at the top of a Tower. There are windows on all sides. Through them we can see the Crystal Kingdom, now flickering and fading at an alarming rate. But it is what is at the far end of the room that catches Twilight's eye... a glowing Crystal Heart!

A winded Spike reaches the top of the staircase as an eager Twilight rushes over to retrieve the Crystal Heart. She uses her magic to pick it up. But as she turns to go, she hears a cracking sound. Startled, she drops the Crystal Heart. Suddenly, black crystal shards shoot up out of the floor and surround her, trapping her in a black crystal prison.

Meanwhile, back at the Faire, the jig is up. The Crystal Kingdom ponies have discovered that there is no Crystal Heart. The Ponyville Ponies try to make the Fairgoers believe that it will be there soon but no one believes them. The Crystal Kingdom ponies turn on Princess Cadence, accusing her of the same treachery as their former Queen.

ACT VI

Twilight remains trapped in the black crystal prison. She looks around her for the Crystal Heart, and then realizes it isn't in the cell with her. Spike is holding it in his claws at the top of the stairwell. Spike informs her that when the shards started shooting up, Twilight dropped the heart and it skidded toward him. "There must be a way for you to get out of there," Spike says frantically. "You have to be the one who brings the Crystal Heart to Princess Cadence. If you don't, you fail Celestia's test," he adds. Twilight's mind races. "A spell. I think I know... if I could just remember..." Twilight says as she paces in her cell. Through the windows of the tower she can see that the Crystal Kingdom is growing as jagged and black as the cage in which Twilight is imprisoned. Twilight pauses. She suddenly relaxes. She knows what to do.

"You have to be the one to bring the Crystal Heart to the Princess," Twilight tells Spike. "What?!" Spike replies. Twilight tells him that there might not be enough time for her to find a way to escape. She isn't going to risk the future of the Crystal Kingdom in an effort to save her own. "Go!" she commands.

Back at the Crystal Faire, Applejack, Rarity, Rainbow Dash, and Fluttershy stand around Princess Cadence, trying to keep the increasingly agitated Crystal Kingdom ponies at bay. "She's just like the Changeling Queen!" the angry mob shouts, their coats growing even darker than they were before. "She didn't know about the heart," Applejack counters. "Then why is there a pedestal for it?" responds one of the ponies. "Why did you all trick us into thinking it was there?" adds another. "This whole thing has just been a scam!" shouts another pony.

Suddenly, Spike pushes his way through the crowd. He steps in front of the Princess and shows her the Crystal Heart. The Ponyville Ponies share elated, then concerned looks. Where is Twilight? She has to be the one to help Princess Cadence or—Spike shakes his head. It isn't going to happen. The crowd goes silent as Princess Cadence uses her magic to place the Crystal Heart upon the pedestal. "The Changeling Queen took away all that was important to you. Trust that I will make sure that every bit of it is returned," she adds. She lowers her horn and points it at the Crystal Heart.

FLASH! There is an EXPLOSION of LIGHT from every facet of the Crystal Heart. The faces of the Crystal Kingdom citizens transform from hatred to hope. Another FLASH! And the ponies are TRANSFORMED into their true Crystal Pony form. Rarity squeals with delight as she looks down to see that the magic is so strong that even the Ponyville Ponies glitter and glow. The light reflects off of them and into the sky, creating the Aurora Borealis effect Princess Celestia told Twilight about.

A SERIES OF SHOTS show citizens in all parts of Equestria looking up to see the light of the Crystal Kingdom reflected in the night sky.

Inside the Castle Tower, the black crystal walls of Twilight's prison shatter around her and she too glitters and glows. She looks out to see the light reflecting off of the now Crystal Ponies. "Good job, Spike," she says softly.

Soon after, Twilight, free from her prison, joins her friends in the throne room of the Crystal Castle. They have all returned to their normal states. "Sadly our transformation was only temporary," Rarity laments. Spike tells her she's still the prettiest pony he's ever seen. Twilight expresses her happiness that Spike was successful in getting the Crystal Heart to Princess Cadence and that the Crystal Kingdom can once again be the symbol of hope and light that it once was. But there is a hint of sadness in her voice; her own future may not be so bright.

Later, back in Canterlot, Twilight's friends offer their comfort and support as she heads into the castle to meet with Princess Celestia. "Chin up, kid," Rainbow Dash tells her. Twilight enters the throne room to find Princess Celestia staring out at the night sky and the light of the Crystal Kingdom in the distance. "It's beautiful," Princess Celestia says. "I wish it had been me who ultimately made it so," Twilight replies, "But it wasn't. And I guess that means my studies are over," she adds solemnly, lowering her head. So much for keeping her chin up.

Princess Celestia turns around to face Twilight. "On the contrary," Princess Celestia counters. "You have more than proven that your studies should, no, must continue," she adds. Twilight looks up, confused, "But you said that I had to be the one who ultimately helped Princess Cadence restore the Crystal Kingdom. I failed to follow your instructions. How can I have passed the test?"

Princess Celestia explains that Twilight proved she wasn't willing to risk the future of others in an effort to guarantee her own. Far better that she have a student who understands the meaning of self-sacrifice, than one who only looks out for her own best interests. "You do want to continue to be my student, don't you?" Princess Celestia asks. "Yes! Yes! Yes!" Twilight answers. Overjoyed, Twilight rushes out to her friends to share the good news. They congratulate her on her success. "I knew everything would be fine," Spike says, unconvincingly.

Back in the castle, Princess Celestia and Princess Luna meet up once again. "She has no idea what is in store for her, does she?" Princess Luna asks. "Not a clue," replies Princess Celestia. And on this cryptic note we...

END EPISODE