UNTITLED NIGHTMARE NIGHT

Premise Revised by Natasha Levinger

It's Nightmare Night, which means Fluttershy is preparing for a (hopefully) quiet night in. She looks out the window and sees the rest of her friends unable to contain their excitement about how much fun they're going to have together. Fluttershy hates to miss out on all that, and she's done so well coming out of her shell the past few years.

“Maybe it's time for me to face my fears and (gulp) enjoy Nightmare Night.”

The whole town is preparing for Nightmare Night. The Mane 5 try to make the preparations a little less scary for Fluttershy -- Applejack tones down her corn maze, Rarity offers some less-frightening costumes, etc -- but she just can't shake her fears. Finally, Rainbow Dash tells her that the best way to not be scared on Nightmare Night is to be the one doing the scaring.

After a terrible first go at it, with renewed determination she tries and succeeds at a haunted cottage with the help of her animal friends. But she succeeds a little TOO well! Fluttershy accidentally convinces the town that zombie forest creatures have arrived to take over Ponyville! But when they realize it was Fluttershy the whole time they are very impressed and excited. They want her to do that EVERY year! She was the BEST at Nightmare Night. But she has to admit that she actually she hates it. She agrees, she IS great at being scary, but it's just not for her. She realizes that she doesn't have to like something just because her friends do.
