THE CUTIE RE-MARK – PARTS 1 & 2

Premise by Josh Haber

AURORA GLIMMER breaks into the map room of Princess Twilight's castle with nefarious purposes. Twilight discovers her, but she just laughs and disappears. Twilight can't figure out where she went or what she was doing until Aurora Glimmer reappears and tells her, gloating, that she used her magic and the map to pinpoint the exact place and time that the Mane Six developed their connection – the moment when they all simultaneously got their Cutie Marks. She's gone back in time and stopped Rainbow Dash from performing the Sonic Rainboom that lead to all of the Mane Six getting their Cutie Marks.

Twilight Sparkle must go back in time to try to stop her, but turns up at the moment of her magic test. The Sonic Rainboom doesn't happen and she fails the test. Celestia, "Hmm. I had so much faith in her. I suppose I'll need to find a new pupil." Twilight realizes that if she doesn't become Celestia's student, she'll never be sent to Ponyville, she'll never find the elements of Harmony, she'll never discover the magic of friendship and she'll never become a princess. She's going to have to figure out how to reset her path fast because...

In the present, the timeline we know is unraveling, reversing every major event we've seen over the course of the show in the order that they happened. The Saplings of Harmony that have been planted across Equestria in our map episodes disappear and with them the solutions to the Friendship Problems the Mane 6 have solved over the course of the season. Tirek wins and steals all the magic of Equestria, providing some pretty convincing evidence to Aurora that maybe she didn't make the best decision. She joins the rest of the Mane 5 as they try to fight Tirek, but he quickly defeats them and sends them to Tartarus.

Luckily, the world shifts again and the gang find themselves back in Ponyville. Unluckily, they discover that the plunder seeds have taken over the Tree of Harmony and Celestia and Luna are gone. Since they've been through this they know what to do, but before they can, the world unravels further and Twilight's Castle disappears.

At that exact moment, in the past, Twilight's wings vanish and she knows she has to step up her efforts to fix the past. End of Part I.

In a TBD way, Twilight goes about orchestrating all the things that need to happen to recreate the moment when Dash's big trick not only helps Twilight showcase her magical abilities in front of Celestia, but also leads to the other Mane Five getting their Cutie Marks simultaneously. If she doesn't, the future (her present) will never be.

As Twilight struggles to recreate the events that will bring the friends together in the past –the gang continues to deal with the unraveling of the world in the present: King Sombra suddenly rules the Crystal Empire; Chrysalis and her army of changelings control Canterlot; Evil Discord pops up around Equestria spreading chaos, etc.

All of this leads up to the realization that if Twilight doesn't succeed in the past, Nightmare Moon will never be defeated. She will return, defeat her sister, imprison Celestia in the moon and night will reign forever. Pinkie: "Well, I sure hope Twilight is having better luck than we are."

In the past Twilight's TBD efforts behind the scenes to orchestrate everything are finally successful. She gets the Rainboom to go off in a way that has the same effect that it did originally. Each of the friends gets their Cutie Mark and Twilight's magical abilities are revealed to Celestia who takes her on as a student.

Future Twilight's wings reappear and she knows she's been successful. She returns to find the world back to normal, her friends safe, and a remorseful Aurora Glimmer super sorry for all the trouble she caused. Princess Twilight realizes that all of Aurora's poor decisions stem from the fact that while she possesses great magical skills, she has never truly experienced the Magic of Friendship. Princess Twilight decides to take Aurora on as her student and we end with Aurora penning her first letter to her new teacher. "Dear Princess Twilight..."
