

TEASER

FS hears horrible noise. Assumes it's a dying animal. Nope. It's Pinkie playing her new zenithrash!

ACT ONE

PP gives the gang a private concert. Ain't it great? She runs off to practice. They all agree it's terrible but they should support her.

Montage:

She plays for each in turn. They all trying to hang, but it's clearly difficult.

The gang decide they have to tell her. Can't end up like Hobby Horse episode.

They tell her and she seems to take it well.

Reveal she is totally broken up about it.

ACT TWO

PP is a wreck. The gang are beside themselves for hurting her feelings. They decide to try to cheer her up.

Montage:

They each in turn try to get her to do the things she's good at to remind her that she is good at things.

It doesn't work and PP is still miserable. The gang decide to throw her a party, but she doesn't show up.

They go to her place and find she's gone. In a note she tells them that she appreciates their help, but she's too blue. She misses her zenithrash. She's decided to move to Yakyakistan. At least there she can hear the true masters play and hopes that will give her some semblance of joy.

ACT THREE

The gang rush up to try to convince her to come home.

They find her and realize she's still miserable. Listening to the zenithrash just makes her realize how much she misses playing.

The gang realize they were wrong. It doesn't matter if you are good at something or not if it makes you happy. They encourage her to play. PP is concerned since she isn't good and yaks only like things that are perfect. Her friends tell her not to worry. They will stand by her because they know playing makes her happy.

PP plays, tentatively at first but the more she plays, the happier she gets – though it is definitely still awful. She finishes and the yak audience goes wild! The yaks explain that because the instrument makes her happy, PP's zenithrash playing is perfect!
