"Cousin Tim"

A grizzled but optimistic 60-something year old genius inventor and explorer who has spent the past 30-odd years trapped between dimensions. Although he can easily incapacitate most monsters or beasts with a headlock, he is totally ignorant of anything in our dimension since 1982, and would run and hide at the mere sight of a Roomba or Kardashian. While his otherworldly brilliance and grand aspirations can make him an imposing figure, he has a playful and grandfatherly relationship with 12 year old Dipper (Jason Ritter) & Mabel (Kristen Schaal), whom he hopes to teach about the hidden secrets of the universe. Or at the very least get them to explain how to open iTunes.

1). "Cousin Tim"

PANIC: Dipper! Don't let the creature touch you, he'll develop a taste for human blood! (to the creature) DIE! DIE AND TELL THEM THAT IT WAS I WHO SLAYED YOU! (Beat) Ha, well, that was fun. Ping Pong anyone?

2). "Cousin Tim"

COMMISERATING: I'm sorry Dipper but inter dimensional travel is a tricky thing. You're just too young to handle the quantum sickness, time compression, and also really cool laser guns and fantasy princesses on the other side. It's strictly for adults! (softening) Maybe I'll give you a peek.

3). "Cousin Tim"

CHEERFUL THEN WORRIED: Ha-ha what a day! Smell that wonderful country air! And not a cloud in the sky! Just one very, very massive asteroid hurtling towards us at blinding speed and...oh dear. Where did I put the keys to the bomb shelter. (feeling in pockets) Come on, they're always in the last place you look. I got them! No, that's just Tic-Tacs.

4). "Cousin Tim"

SAGE WISDOM: "When life gives you lemons, consider for a moment the cold yet beautiful vastness of a universe that, through billions of random mutations, produced life forms that would one day be capable of telling rhetorical fruit-based aphorisms. Did that make you feel better? Another job well done!"
