

Gurdy is an angry, bossy, short-tempered little brown bird. She suffers from short man syndrome and overcompensates for her short height by seeking power over the Uncookedland gang. Gurdy is mad that her owner treats her like an infant. She's dressed, powdered and primped by her owner. Gurdy has a devious mind, unfortunately that mind is often trumped by her raging emotions and paranoia.

GURDY SIDES

1. Gurdy

(standing in front of the Uncookedland pets annoyed that nobody is settling down)

Alright, alright, settle down, quiet! I said shut it! I call this meeting of the Uncookedland Club to order. Any new business that's not stupid?

2. Gurdy

(angrily responding to the memory of her weird owner dressing her up as a fairytale princess)

I don't want to be a princess! I hate pink, and that tieria wasn't even real diamonds. I keep it real. And don't get me started on that knight, he was all up in my business.

3. Gurdy

(trying to defend herself to Barry, after the pets complain about her disastrous Snow Ball dance)

Geez, almost kill all your friends with a million tons of snow and you never hear the end of it.

4. Gurdy

(angrily excited to make up for the last terrible dance she threw)

Finally my chance to make up for the Snow Ball. They want a Spring Fling, I'll give them the best one ever. Right in their faces!

5. Gurdy

(resigned to the horror of having to go home and deal with her owner)

Ughh, back to the castle. That knight better watch his hands. Those strong callous hands.